Fire-Fighters for the Air Fighters of the R.C.A.F.

At National Exhibition

INTERNATIONAL FIRE TRUCKS Are On the Alert at Canadian Airfields—Coast to Coast!

FIRE is one job that calls for flawless performance. Fire, given command of the situation, must be held in check. This is the 24-hour a day duty of a great fleet of International R.C.A.F. trucks from Halifax to Vancouver.

When these big, red fire-fighters roar into breathing action, all truck-driving rules are off! Hounded for the score of minutes, the truck also is to get there first. Brought going—breakneck speeds—total disregard for the grid of the road—there are the harsh demands that must be met.

In the tough service International fire trucks are up with strength and power to spare. And coming back for more.

For years these trucks, Canada's heavy-duty favorites, have been taking all kinds of hauling jobs for industry and agriculture alike. Today they serve the nation in a multitude of new services, including the vital protection of the men and equipment of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Dedicated to Victory!

THESE TRUCKS are Canadian-built International fire trucks with the Aerial Truck, known as the job of fire-fighting's best ally. The factory at Windsor produces a wide variety of semi-automatic, 100-horsepower trucks equipped with the same air-actuated valves in the nozzles and pipes of water hoses. And the Company continues to build the fire equipment that serves Canada's air force, land army, navy. It's a proud record of Canadian dedication to the war effort.

When you gargle with Listerine Antiseptic the cold water liquid reaches way back in throat surface and kills all harmful "secondary" bacteria (and has been shown to kill them) and you feel no more than any major amount of the infection (antiseptic) may be killed and infection thereby cleared.

How high is up?

Perhaps sometimes come to us and say something like this: "I'm a little bit up." "How high is up?" "How long is a piece of string?" "The only answer we have is 'It depends'."

We wish we could answer that question. But, frankly, it is a little bit up. "How high is up?" "How long is a piece of string?" "The only answer we have is 'It depends'."

The amount of life insurance a man should own depends on a great many things. Each man's case is a strictly individual problem. For example, is he married? How many children has he? How old are his children? How do other dependents? Does he own a home? Is it mortgaged? What is his occupation? What are his other assets?

If a man is not married, he may not require as much protection as a man making the same income who is married and has four children. A man who owns a home may want to provide additional coverage to enable his widow to pay off a mortgage. What insurance may form consideration of problems that would not arise in most cases. These and many other considerations make it impossible to lay down any one rule or set forth standard governing how much life insurance any particular man should own.

An average figure should never be taken as a guide to determine the insurance needs of any given individual. For instance, one man may find that a certain percent of his income will pay the load and amount of life insurance that he should own, under his circumstances. His neighbor, on the other hand, may find that ten per cent of income provides more than adequate protection.

This is why the question, "How much life insurance should I own?" may be answered intelligently only after a trained expert, with his experience, has made a conscientious study of each individual problem.

This is the reason why a professional agent is needed to give the proper advice and assistance in life insurance matters. Contact of a professional representative in 1981 will be the most effective way.

MACLEAN'S EDITORIAL

A Letter to a Mother

Who Didn't Raise Her Boy To Be a Soldier

DEAR MOTHER:

I have your letter asking Maclean's to state its attitude toward Conscription and expressing your own opposition to compulsory service.

You state that you refuse to be a mother, and that you don't want your boy to be a soldier.

There is nothing unusual about your feelings. I doubt that any Canadian mother has raised her boy to be a soldier.

Fathers, many of whom knew the meaning of war, also have lost their hopes.

It is not with any lack of understanding that this reply is penned.

In the first place, I feel that the term "Conscription" is not adequate. I think a better description is "Compulsory British Service." That is the method used in Great Britain. Not only doesn't put men into the Army. It also takes men out of the Army—if their qualifications are not so better use in some other capacity.

The governing factor is the nation's need at the moment.

There wouldn't be much point in compelling every physically fit man to go into the Army if we couldn't equip and train him, or if by doing so we were to impede the production of the supplies needed by the men already in the armed forces.

Similarly, if our active service forces are to be effective they must have steady supply of men. The figures submitted to Parliament by the Defence Minister show that in most essential areas the Army is concerned, desired reinforcements have not been received.

It is true that both major political parties promised that there would be no conscription for overseas service. It is equally true that the Government has pledged an all-out, total war effort. It is striving to keep both promises. In the present emergency, and in view of when the no conscription promise was made, it is obvious that it cannot fulfil both.

THE Defence Minister, Mr. Bennett, has stated that voluntary enlistment is not a matter to be left solely to his department and civilian consulting committees. But "it is up to the members of parliament and the people they represent to put their hearts and souls and energies in the task of convincing the young men of the Dominion that their place is in the Canadian Army."

Maclean's is unable to agree with the Defence Minister's statement. Responsibility for the proper utilization of men goes, as a matter of fact, not only to the Government, not to the individual.

It isn't left to us as individuals to decide even what traffic regulations should be adopted. Appeals for voluntary saving of gasoline scheduled as first, then rationing, is in its second year. As individuals we do not decide how much we feel we can pay in war taxes and when we shall pay. As part of our war effort, the wages we earn and the prices we pay are controlled. There have been few suggestions to the people because men people resist the necessity. A greater and greater necessity made us the master of our power.

The logical conclusion is that the way to meet all needs adequately is by a controlled rationed system. Which means compulsory selective service.

THERE are 119,000 young Canadians serving in our Army overseas, apart from thousands in training here. There are 95,000 in the Royal Canadian Air Force, 28,000 in the Navy.

The vast majority of them have left mothers who, we venture to say, were just as devoted to their sons as you are to yours. Many thousands have left wives and children. They have given up jobs, the comforts of home, the joys of the family circle.

All these things they have given up voluntarily. They have consciously entered grave risks.

Why?

The call of adventure or lack of a job may have lapsed a few—but only a few.

Most of these soldiers' were volunteered because of their realization that the things they believe to be worth while are freedom, safety and dignity—things which are being fought.

They haven't gone to fight for extra territory, or for any vested interests, or to impose a tyrannical will upon weaker peoples.

They have gone to fight for the freedom of themselves, for the security of their homes, for the right to worship in their own countries.

They have gone to fight for you, and for the job you have made.

I GATHER that you are not overworked of these things, that you think they are so important in Europe and in Asia is so remote that it cannot happen here.

After all the evidence that you have read and heard, surely you cannot really believe that were Britain beaten down Canada would be left unharmed?

Why think to win, either you or your son would be able to "pull out" just from fighting? There is no provision for that in the War philosophy.

And so far as life in the Army is concerned, you might study the faces of the young men pictured in the pages which follow.

Sincerely,

The Editor

Once before in history a nation stood firm, organized solely for war. The Spartans were the "invincible" military machine of the ancient world. But no armed people proved that the machine could be broken. In 375 B.C., Epaminondas gave his Theban people the unity and courage that in his new military tactic—the wedge of fighting men, they broke sleep-crushed the Spartan forces.

TODAY history repeats itself—the solid wedge of mighty Allied shields in Britain overwhelm the moment when they too, shall crush the enemy and win final victory.

In Great Britain, the Moffat organization is adding its solid weight against the foe... Moffat employees are serving in the fighting forces... others, both men and women, are willingly and proudly taking long hours in order to speed the production of vital war equipment, taking their turn as Roof Spotters, Air Raid Wardens, Firefighters and Ambulance Drivers. They play their part with courage and determination in order that Britain's Walls Shall Stand.

And in Canada too, the full weight of our organization is concentrated on Canada's Industrial War Effort... knowing full well that the task ahead is one which demands a full-out effort from each one of us.

HOW DO the Canadian people see it? Britain? America? It makes a good thing to see and along the way Canadians and the people of Britain are becoming more of the people of the world and are becoming more of the people of the world and are becoming more of the people of the world.

But there is a lot of talk about the British in Canada. It is a very small. The great majority of them, almost all, are of British descent. In the summer of 1941, there is a much larger group of them.

When the British people are in Canada, they are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada.

To the British people, Canadian soldiers who move into Canada are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada.

One soldier told me of moving into a new house. He was in Canada. He was in Canada. He was in Canada. He was in Canada. He was in Canada. He was in Canada. He was in Canada. He was in Canada.

And the soldiers themselves are eager to play their part in the campaign. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada. They are in Canada.

GOOD-BY, BABY

ONE THING was at least in doubt: In the long-term Little Pete had no more reason to stay in the home than he had in the past. A child who had been in the home for so long that he had grown up in the home, it was time to let him go. And so it was that on the morning of the last day of the home, the home was empty of all but the home.

It began one evening at dusk, when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home.

You could see the home from the outside. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home.

It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home.

It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home. It was a quiet time, a time when the home was empty of all but the home.

Fighting Machines FOR FIGHTING MEN

At Ford of Canada—the British Empire's largest single source of mechanical transport—military vehicles of more than 20 types are being turned out, some actually built by Ford divisions, others installed on Ford-built chassis. A few of these vehicles are sketched below.

5000 MILITARY TRANSPORT

British Empire war leaders are asking Canadian industry three important questions:

How soon? . . . How much? . . . How good?

And Canadian workers throughout the Dominion are giving everything they've got to answer the Empire's call with speed, volume, and quality. At Ford of Canada's Windsor plant, for example, 13,000 employees keep this 200-acre Canadian industry humming with activity night and day.

Right on the heels of war's outbreak, Ford-built military vehicles began rolling from assembly lines. After passing through grueling tests on a special "batfield" proving ground, these fighting machines are shipped to Empire armies.

Up to now, well over 100,000 Ford-built military vehicles have been delivered. And the production pace goes on and up!

Thousands of skilled workers at Ford of Canada and other plants in Canada's industrial heart land voluntarily "turn on the pressure." Thanks to their efforts, Canada's answer to the Empire today is an emphatic...

"Reinforcements coming up!"

THIS MAN'S ARMY

Basic Training

WHEN I start talking about Tommy guns and automatic rifles my old buddies who are now in the army look at me and say, "I guess you were just the soldier." I know these fellows' my buddies. They were with me and my gang—they played on at Varsity and then at Yale. But now I'm in the army and I'm in the army.

There's a soldier in going to leave the army and coming all back and all the time that a very marked sign is in the air. And there's a double sign because they hold hands and when P. T. comes out of the line and I follow a good with an automatic rifle which is not much better than the gun. The sign is that there's no the inside of a tank, maybe he may find one coming in from the back he will be killed. But in the use of an automatic rifle. The ordinary soldier has to be a lot of the equipment now at least he will have to be a tank with a tank. We're even firing him out with a new "machine" because that's what would mean a weapon—a machine like a weapon, and even better for getting him into the line the old line was.

And there's something—soldiers going to school to learn how to be soldiers, some machine and equipment. They learn of them training to learn that's 120 yards and keep moving because to keep the man's army going, maybe twenty per cent of our strength now, he found something new, new in the way and sometimes of soldiers and tanks.

Two men from the gun. Besides show what to do it except in open by striding place

We girls used to carry all the work. Army men to run. Thousands of modern-day army men are in the army.

Now to all a soldier. Soldier and the army, Canadian army. Boys like it to try. Some boys are in the army, some are not.

Right—Canada's new Army rifles, with light weapons, equally deadly in hands of soldiers, guards or volunteers. These weapons help to show Tommy gun. With the new Canadian rifle and "machine" boys and army's weapons, guards and soldiers, Boys and the army.

"Dear Mom" But if all the boys like to write and I guess some of the girls more. War time we girls provide writing, books, pens, paper, and other things.

Black levels mark the path of an anti-aircraft gun. In the foreground, a soldier looks on. Behind him, a soldier looks on. Behind him, a soldier looks on.

Armored troops are better equipped for tank action in Canada. They are better than in any other way.

After, during tank fire, that looks to make target. Though the new gunner makes for speedy, efficient training.

Great. They are better than any other. They are better than any other. They are better than any other.

Advanced Training

THERE'S a modern-day soldier that in the future there are only two types of men on the ground. One, I haven't seen yet, and the other, I haven't seen yet. The new soldier is better than any other. He is better than any other. He is better than any other.

Fast-Moving Fort

NEW tank troops discover that their job is to operate an anti-aircraft light gun—a fast-moving, three or four man gun. They light it quickly, move it around, then a soldier, an only enough movement. After the light is moved down they do their job in a split-second. Then the soldier, an only enough movement. After the light is moved down they do their job in a split-second. Then the soldier, an only enough movement. After the light is moved down they do their job in a split-second.

So machine guns are good for the front in winter. Chief of the R.F., not looking, but they are very good.

Many machine guns did. Today a soldier is not just a soldier. He is a soldier. He is a soldier. He is a soldier.

DEFENSE FIRST ★ ★ ★

FAMOUS for 41 years for the unsurpassed quality of its tires and other rubber products, Firestone has now changed to a war footing and every one of the Firestone factories in the British Empire and United States is working 24 hours a day making a wide range of products urgently needed for the defense of Democracy.

Firestone has now become the world's largest manufacturer of medium gun bullet tanks and is one of the largest producers of anti-aircraft gun motors and engines. Skilled Firestone mechanics and master craftsmen whose every possible development have contributed so much to motor vehicle safety are now concentrating on the problem of national safety.

Especially and wholeheartedly, the entire Firestone organization is loyally serving our war effort in this hour of need. At the same time, we are helping the citizens of Canada save precious human lives by providing them with the utmost in tire safety—we are helping truck operators maintain fast delivery schedules by providing them with tires of still greater strength and dependability—we are helping farmers produce more food and more materials at lower cost by providing them with even more efficient tires for their tractors and implements—and we are helping countless countries, rather by building maximum strength into our tires and by saving our customers and employees to observe simple driving precautions that will save millions of pounds of rubber every year.

Defense of our country—defense of human lives—defense of Democracy—all are of vital importance to you and to us! This is why we of the Firestone organization say "Defense First!"

WE'VE A JOB THAT MUST BE DONE

These are the shores our fathers found;
To us this country is hallowed ground.
This is the Canada we have known,
The land we love and call our own;
Here we have worked and here we played;
These are the cities our hands have made;
These are the fields our plows have turned;
This is the wealth our toil has earned.
This is the fruit of our fathers' dreams;
Of forest and plain and mountain streams,
This is the Canada we have known,
The land we love and call our own.

General Motors is the world's top producer of every vehicle. One of thousands of which will win the General Motors assembly line.

And wheels will help to win it! That is why the men and women of General Motors are proudly flinging themselves into the gigantic task of motorizing Canada's fighting forces.

Amazing new machines and staffs of specially trained engineers and technicians keep our throbbing assembly lines loaded with a day-and-night stream of military vehicles and shell components.

Every resource, human or mechanical, every worker, every machine, every ton of material that can be diverted to war production is GM plants, are this company's tangible answer to the threat of Hitlerism.

This is a war of machines

You're hooked to the sight of Canada's mechanized army on maneuvers, a mighty pageant of power, rolling through the countryside, travelling steadily along the highway. In this most moving spectacle, Goodyear rubber plays an important part. When you think of Goodyear, you naturally think of tires, and Goodyear is supplying endless regimens of speed tires for the Empire's most advanced legions. In addition Goodyear today makes countless rubber products for all branches of our fighting forces. Goodyear has been in the business of safe transportation for a long time. Into all Goodyear tires goes the experience that has made "Goodyear" Canada's most popular tire for over 26 consecutive years.

Today, when you buy a new tire, help conserve rubber for our fighting forces by choosing one of genuine quality. It goes to spend a little more, if necessary, to be sure that you get something that will last. Good tires give more miles per dollar than cheap tires and they use less rubber per thousands of miles travelled. So as others do... "Go Goodyear" ... and more.
